NEW YORK UNIVERSITY ENVIRONMENTAL LAW JOURNAL

The New York University Environmental Law Journal and Environmental Law Society, in association with the Frank J. Guarini Center for Land Use and Environmental Law, invite you to attend the 2013 Symposium, Green for Green: The Business and Law of Renewable Energy Finance. The Symposium will take place on February 15, 2013 at NYU School of Law.

This full-day Symposium will feature three panels discussing the key legal, financial and policy issues facing the growth and development of the renewable energy sector. The Symposium will provide a forum for leaders in the renewable energy field—representing renewable energy companies, legal practice and academia, investment funds, nonprofits, government, and project developers—to debate these key issues, and to outline what private and public players can and should be doing to facilitate the expansion of the industry. Speakers will include:

Robert Freedman (Shearman & Sterling, LLP)
David Hill (NRG Energy)
Reed Hundt (Coalition for Green Capital)
Keith Johnson (Wall Street Journal)
Kit Kennedy (Natural Resources Defense Council)
Nat Keohane (National Economic Council)
Micah Kotch (New York City Accelerator for a Clean and Renewable Economy)
Michael Likosky (Center on Law and Public Finance)
Richard Stewart (New York University School of Law)
John Williams (New York State Energy Research and Development Authority)
Jonathan Wolfson (Solazyme)

PROGRAM:

8:30–9:00	Registration/Breakfast
9:00–9:30	Welcome and Opening Remarks
9:30–11:00	Panel One: Government Incentives and Public Finance
11:15–12:15	Keynote Speech: The Future of Clean Energy Finance
12:15–1:15	Lunch
1:15–2:45	Panel Two: Private Finance
3:00–4:30	Panel Three: Legal Issues

*Speakers and program subject to change.

CLE credit will be available.

RSVP at http://nyulaw.imodules.com/greenforgreen.

Visit http://www1.law.nyu.edu/journals/envtllaw/colloquia/upcoming/index.html for more information, or contact Ted Lamm, Symposium Editor, NYU Environmental Law Journal at theodore.lamm@nyu.edu. We look forward to seeing you at the event!