Conway Ekpo is a 5th year associate with Riker Danzig LLP. His litigation practice focuses on advising and defending financial institutions, corporations and other business entities in complex commercial litigation matters including commercial contracts, compliance issues, securities and banking litigation as well as white collar criminal defense.

Prior to joining Riker Danzig, Conway worked as a judicial intern for the Hon. Ronald J. Hedges of the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey, and as a judicial intern for the Hon. James C. Francis, IV of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York. He is also a former associate of the New York office of Heller Ehrman LLP.

While pursuing his law degree at Rutgers University School of Law, Conway served as Managing Editor of the Rutgers Law Review.

He is currently active with the National Bar Association, the New York Metropolitan Black Bar Association, the Garden State Bar Association - Young Lawyer's Division and is also a guest speaker for the New Jersey Law Firm Group which provides networking opportunities and mentorship for minority law students in the state of New Jersey. Conway also serves as a committee member on the New York State Bar Association's Committee on Legal Education & Admission to the Bar.

In addition to his practice at Riker Danzig, Conway is currently an adjunct professor of law at Rutgers School of Law - Newark where he teaches a course on bar exam strategies for the New York and New Jersey bar exams.