Jessica is corporate-transactional generalist, representing individuals and small to mid-sized companies in their formation, entering of joint ventures, negotiating with their consultants, providers, partners and customers as well as counseling them in their business operations and in strategizing as to how to ensure corporate growth and stability. She has counseled clients in connection with various types of corporate transactions including lending and finance, mergers and acquisitions, development and cooperation, services, real property and licensing. Additionally, she has worked with privately and publicly held companies in the preparation, negotiation and filing of documentation required under applicable securities laws.

Much of her experience was gained through her deep experience representing middle market lenders, whether financial institutions, hedge funds or other banks, in providing, and public and private borrowers obtaining, secured and unsecured financial accommodations in the form of working capital loans, acquisition financings, monetization loans, hedging transactions, DIP financings and letters of credit.

Jessica's breadth of experience spans many industries, including sports (major league and minor leagues), media, telecommunications, biopharmaceuticals, videogames and virtual worlds, entertainment, environmental, fashion, mobile advertising, art and graphic design, technology and construction, among others.

Prior to establishing the Law Offices of Jessica Thaler, Esq, Jessica had worked for some of New York City's premier corporate firms including Clifford Chance USA LP, Herrick, Feinstein LP and Loeb & Loeb LLP. She is a member of the New York State Bar Association and acts as the Committee Chair for its Committee on Lawyers in Transition, Co-Chair of Membership for its Entertainment, Art and Sports Law Section and serves on its Membership Committee. Jessica is also an active member of the Sports Lawyers Association.

Jessica is a graduate of UCLA, cum laude (1995) and Fordham University School of Law School (1999) and is heavily involved in the alumni associations for both universities. She is admitted to practice in the State of New York.
