Leo Parmegiani is a Tax Partner of O'Connor Davies LLP and has over 30 years of experience in public accounting.

Leo has considerable expertise in a broad range of tax specialty areas, including the hospitality and real estate industries, both domestic and international business investments, sales and use tax, C Corporations, S Corporations, Partnerships, LLCs and REITs, and state and local tax issues. He has worked extensively with high net worth individuals, including United States taxpayers living abroad and foreign nationals living in the United States and advises foreign groups in establishing domestic business operations. Leo has years of experience in cross border tax structuring, transfer pricing issues and tax examination representation.

Leo heads up the Firm's international tax practice, is a member of the Firm's Tax Leadership Committee and is Chairman of PKF International's Internationally Mobile Individual Tax Committee.

He also serves as the international liaison partner for tax matters for all North America for PKF International. He is an adjunct professor at a local college where he teaches graduate level courses in advanced tax concepts and serves as the Editorial Adviser of the AICPA magazine, "The Tax Adviser". He is a frequent lecturer for in-house professional education, industry and professional events and a regular contributor of articles to various publications. He has spent his entire career with large accounting firm networks, and has been active in promotion, professional standards and quality control for 15 years with PKFI. He frequently contributes tax articles to the PKF International Tax Alert and presents at the annual PKF International Tax Conference.
