

Michelle Crowley, Esq.
District Attorney Office
Monroe County
47 S. Fitzhugh St.
Rochester, NY 14614

Michelle Crowley returned to the Monroe County District Attorney's Office in 2012 after serving in the Ontario County District Attorney's Office. Crowley began her career as a prosecutor in Orange County where she was the head of the Domestic Violence Unit before moving to Monroe County in 2002, becoming one of the Major Felony Bureau's top prosecutors. In her 15 year career, Ms. Crowley has prosecuted hundreds of violent felony cases, including homicides. Crowley, whose official title is Director of Attorney Training and Grand Jury, is responsible for ensuring that prosecutors working within the office comply with the continuing legal education requirement mandated by the State of New York for all practicing attorneys. In this role, Crowley works with Assistant District Attorneys both individually and in groups providing comprehensive and consistent training in an effort to leave them in the best position possible to obtain convictions and ensure the safety of the community. A native of Elmira, New York, Ms. Crowley performed her undergraduate studies at Ithaca College and completed her Juris Doctorate at the Albany School of Law.
