

Mark Mahoney is a recipient of the Criminal Justice Section's "Outstanding Practitioner Award," and has served as a President of the New York State Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers and as a Board Member of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers. In 1980 Mark began lecturing on "The Right to Present a Defense." Eight years later, the New York Court of Appeals recognized this specific constitutional guarantee. With the wide national circulation of his monograph and his numerous lectures across the country explaining this powerful principle, Mark Mahoney's name has become synonymous with "The Right to Present a Defense."