I. Presidential Initiatives

A. Special Committee on Re-Entry

Since its formation in 2012, the Special Committee on Re-Entry, created by Immediate Past President Seymour James, has focused on enhancing former inmates' successful reintegration into their communities. Under the leadership of co-chairs Sheila Gaddis and Ronald Tabak and vice-chair Richard Raysman, the committee is considering measures to reduce recidivism that can be taken during both incarceration and the re-entry process. The committee has divided into six subcommittees that are addressing the unique issues that surround job training and employment, benefits and family rights, education, housing, medical access and mental health, and young people in juvenile detention settings. The committee aims to develop a concise report and recommendations including a consideration of collateral consequences that can have an impact on reentry, as well as proposals for assisting former prisoners with obtaining necessary public assistance and improving the transition from incarceration back into our communities.

B. Special Committee on Gun Violence

The Task Force has held a number of meetings and is in the process of developing its report. It aims to present an informational report at our January meeting and submit its final report for consideration at our April meeting. The Task Force has emphasized the importance of distributing its draft report for extensive feedback in advance of its informational presentation and will welcome comments from sections, committees and local bar associations. Upon receiving and reviewing those comments, it expects to present a final report for approval by the Executive Committee and House of Delegates in April.

C. Committee on Legal Education and Admission to the Bar

Too many law students graduate with crushing debt and few job prospects. Current projections indicate that by 2020, there will only be enough law-related jobs for 20% of law school graduates. At the same time, there is a substantial unmet need for legal services among the indigent and the working poor. Student loan debt can make it difficult for new lawyers to take jobs that would address that unmet need, and some may opt out altogether from a legal career. There are no easy answers, but our Committee on Legal Education and Admission to the Bar continues its work in cooperation with legal educators, practicing lawyers, the Board of Law Examiners, and the courts, to provide a balanced examination of these important issues.

The latest issue of the State Bar Journal focuses on legal education and admission to the bar, and part of the 2014 Presidential Summit at the Annual Meeting will address this area as well. In addition, the Association is coordinating with the Judicial Institute on Professionalism to plan a convocation in the spring to bring together various constituencies to discuss issues related to the future of legal education.

II. Legislative Activities

A. New York State

1. Sealing Criminal Records

Among the Association's 2013 legislative priorities is a proposal of the Criminal Justice Section to seal the records of certain criminal convictions. The philosophy behind the bill is to give a second chance to individuals who have made mistakes, but have since proven to possess good moral character.

While the bill was not ultimately passed, it has spurred important dialog in the Legislature. Since the adjournment of the regular legislative session in late June, the Association has been in contact with Senator Lee Zeldin, the bill's Senate sponsor, to address objections raised in the last hours of the session by advocates opposing the bill.

2. Revising and Improving the Not-for-Profit Corporation Law

As the 2013 legislative session wound down, a bill to significantly revise the State's Not-for-Profit Corporation Law received a great deal of attention from lawmakers. The bill embodies a long-held priority of the Business Law Section and is among the Association's legislative priorities this year. After lengthy discussions and many amendments to the bill, and with significant input from the Business Law Section, the bill was passed by both houses of the Legislature in the final hours of session.

In the weeks since the end of the session, the Department of Governmental Relations, joined by representatives of the Business Law Section, met with the Governor's Counsel's office to advocate for the Governor's approval of the measure. At this time, the Association remains in regular contact with the Governor's office, as the bill is pending delivery to the Governor for consideration.

3. Videotaping of Custodial Interrogations

The Association has, since 2004, actively supported the videotaping of custodial interrogations conducted by law enforcement officials. Despite our continuing advocacy in support of a bill, however, nothing was passed during the 2013 legislative session. Nonetheless, we are hopeful that our sustained efforts will pave the way for legislation to be enacted during the 2014 legislative session, and we will continue to press for legislation on recording and other criminal justice issues when the Legislature convenes in January.

4. Regulation of the Legal Profession by the Department of Financial Services

The New York State Register recently published a rule drafted by state Department of Financial Services (Department) intended to regulate debt collection (Proposed Rule), which stated that "[d]ebt collection companies are hired to collect on debts from credit cards, mortgages, and medical bills, among other transactions that occur every day. The practices employed by debt collection companies' impact the financial transactions of New York consumers and business owners."

It is our understanding that the definition of "debt collector" was not intended to include lawyers when engaging in the practice of law. In my October 2 letter to the Department I requested that this definition be more narrowly drafted to clarify that its purpose is to cover only "debt collection companies," not lawyers or law firms performing legal work. Any lawyer who engages in abusive practices in violation of the Rules of Professional Conduct is subject to discipline through the legal profession's well-established process. For example, Rule 3.4 provides that a lawyer, in dealing with an opposing party, shall not engage in certain specified practices or "knowingly engage in other illegal conduct...." Thus, a lawyer who violates any law related to the collection of debts is already subject to court discipline. Therefore, I respectfully requested that the Department clarify the Proposed Rule so that it cannot be interpreted to apply to lawyers and law firms when engaged in the practice of law.

B. Federal

1. Continued Outreach to the Members of Congress from New York State Regarding Sequestration

Following the lead of Immediate Past President Seymour James, I have continued the Association's advocacy efforts to express to Members of Congress from New York State our concerns over the negative impact of sequestration on the federal courts. On July 23, 2013, U.S. Senator Christopher Coons (D-Del) chaired a hearing by the Senate Judiciary Committee's Subcommittee on Bankruptcy and the Courts. The topic of the hearing was "Sequestering Justice: How the Budget Crisis is Undermining Our Courts." I submitted a letter discussing the State Bar's extensive advocacy efforts in this area, and describing the crisis facing our justice system. The Judicial Conference has requested an emergency appropriation of $72.9 million, which we supported when proposed and have continued to support.

On October 1, the presidents of the state bar associations of Florida, Illinois, Ohio, Nevada, New Jersey, and Wisconsin joined me in sending a letter that went to the congressional delegation of each of those states. The joint letter stated that we "as presidents of several state bar associations...are deeply concerned with the FY 2013 sequestration cuts that imperil the federal judiciary in its efforts to carry out its duties and responsibilities as set forth in the Constitution and by acts of Congress." Our letter pointed out the impact of cuts on both criminal and civil proceedings in the federal courts, and that the fair, efficient and effective administration of justice is the foundation of a free and democratic society, which instills in the public the trust and confidence that is essential to preserve and protect the Rule of Law.

III. Section, Committee, Membership, and Departmental Initiatives

A. Law Youth and Citizenship 37th Annual Conference

Last month, I attended the 37th Annual Civics and Law-Related Education Conference, hosted by our Law, Youth and Citizenship (LYC) Committee in Geneva, New York. The program, entitled “Our Living Constitutions; Connections for Citizenship & Civics,” focused on the New York and U.S. Constitutions and featured keynote speaker Michael A. Rebell, Esq., author and executive director of the Campaign for Education Equity. Thank you to the committee for hosting this excellent program.

B. Pro Bono Programs

October 20-26 marked the 5th Anniversary of National Pro Bono Week and the Association proudly marked the start of the celebration with a luncheon awards ceremony on October 18. President-elect Glenn Lau-Kee was joined by Chief Judge Jonathan Lippman and Jenna Dana, President of the Albany Law School Pro Bono Society, in recognizing the significant pro bono contributions made by 5 honorees: retired Magistrate Judge George H. Lowe, co-chair of the President’s Committee on Access to Justice; Hon. Christine M. Clark (4th Judicial District); Hon. Gary F. Stiglmeier (3rd Judicial District); Hon. Richard Littlefield (Chief Judge, US Bankruptcy Court); and the Hon. George B. Ceresia (3rd Judicial District). On October 24, the Association joined with the New York State Courts Access to Justice Program, the New York City Mayor’s office, and the New York County Lawyers’ Association to acknowledge the contributions made by legal services organizations and volunteer lawyers in providing free legal assistance to the survivors of Superstorm Sandy. In addition, the Association collaborated with its Capital District pro bono partners to sponsor free continuing legal education programs for attorneys willing to accept pro bono case referrals in the areas of unemployment insurance and landlord-tenant law.

C. Technology

The focus of our Management Information Services (“MIS”) Department over the summer was on moving an enormous amount of content from the old web site to the newly designed NYSBA.org. This project included the installation of a new content management system, new software, staff training and many other activities. The new site was launched on September 21, and during the first twenty-one days of operation, the site experienced over 100,000 visits by over 70,000 visitors. During the first week we had the largest single day of web transaction revenues, over $90,000.

The new site works on regular computers, tablets such as the iPad, and smartphones and we are now focused on improving the site’s ability to deliver information to the membership and public. This includes the system to allow NYSBA members to access the new Fastcase benefit and the ability to deliver customized services to our newest members.

In addition, MIS has begun to transition our old listserves to our new Higher Logic Online Community system. Several groups are already using Private Online Professional Communities to collaborate and share discussions and documents. All of this work was helped by the efforts of the Electronic Communications Committee, the MIS Department and staff across the Association.

D. Fall Radio Campaign

With the approach of Election Day and Veterans Day, we recorded a series of messages aimed at promoting civic participation and support for our nation's veterans. The announcements address the importance of voting and provide information about legal and other services available to former members of the military. The spots, which were produced in cooperation with the New York State Broadcasters Association, are running on upstate commercial radio stations for a four-week period which began on October 14.

E. Justice Souter on Humanities Education

On September 12, the State Bar was pleased to co-sponsor an event featuring former U.S. Supreme Justice David Souter. Justice Souter, a former member of the Commission of the Humanities and Social Sciences, was in Albany to promote the importance of humanities in our society. I was pleased to attend and join in a discussion with Justice Souter regarding what he considered to be our society's pervasive lack of knowledge about the three branches of government. Notably, having met Justice Sonia Sotomayor only days before at Touro Law School, this was the second Justice of the Supreme Court I had the opportunity to meet in the same week. To watch a video of Justice Souter's speech, go to www.humanitiescommisson.org.

F. Pro Bono Reporting Requirement

Effective May 1, 2013, all New York attorneys are required to report their voluntary pro bono work and monetary contributions made to legal services providers on their biennial registration forms. For nearly 10 years, our Association has strongly opposed such mandatory reporting. In June I wrote to the Chief Judge expressing the reasons for our opposition, and I met with the Chief Judge in July for a frank exchange of views. We are pleased that the Chief Judge heard our concerns and agreed to defer public disclosure of pro bono service and financial contributions. While we share the Chief Judge's concerns about the need for legal services for the poor, we believe that mandatory reporting is not an appropriate approach for encouraging lawyers to provide pro bono legal services, and we plan to continue this important conversation.

G. Civil Gideon

On October 3, I served as the Master of Ceremonies at a forum to explore the right to counsel in civil matters where basic human needs are at stake. The forum, hosted here at the State Bar Center, came 50 years after the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in Gideon v. Wainwright, where the court found that it was an "obvious truth" that a criminal defendant cannot have a fair trial unless counsel is appointed. Judges, attorneys, professors, and students from 18 law schools (all 15 New York law schools plus Rutgers, Seton Hall, and Yale) participated in the event, which featured remarks by Chief Judge Jonathan Lippman and excerpts from a video produced by the Brennan Center for Justice and the National Coalition for a Civil Right to Counsel. A panel of experts discussed whether there should be a civil right to counsel for low-income individuals facing civil legal actions where eviction, loss of child custody, or the denial of basic human services are at stake. To view the archived program, go to www.nysba.org/probono.

H. Chief Judge Jonathan Lippman's Hearings on Civil Legal Services

The Association was again honored to participate in Chief Judge Jonathan Lippman's fourth annual series of hearings on civil legal services which were held in each department of the Appellate Division in September and October. On September 17, I joined Chief Judge Lippman, Chief Administrative Judge A. Gail Prudenti, and Presiding Justice Karen Peters of the Appellate Division, Third Department, as a panelist at the first of four hearings held around the State aimed at gathering evidence to support increased funding for civil legal services programs. I also assisted in presiding over the third hearing, along with Presiding Justice Randall Eng of the Appellate Division, Second Department. President-Elect Glenn Lau-Kee and Past President Vincent E. Doyle III participated in the hearings in the First and Fourth Departments, respectively. The hearings are aimed at gathering evidence to support increased funding for civil legal services programs. Witnesses included state comptroller Thomas DiNapoli, Albany Law School Dean Penelope Andrews, Rensselaer City Judge Carmelo Laquidara, Albany Family Court Judge Margaret Walsh, business leaders, veteran advocates and clients. We thank Chief Judge Lippman for his efforts in continuing to host these hearings, and for his unwavering commitment to improving access to justice in New York State.

I. Committee on Membership Non-Resident Subcommittee Developments

The Non-Resident Subcommittee of the Committee on Membership is pleased to announce the fourth annual Breakfast Roundtable for Non-Resident Members (Roundtable) slated to be held on Tuesday, January 28, 2014 in New York City, at the Law Offices of Dorsey & Whitney LLP, 51 West 52d Street. ABA President James R. Silkenat will provide special guest remarks.

As in the past, attendees will have the opportunity to hear from and dialogue with NYSBA Leadership. I will be joined by President-Elect Glenn Lau-Kee, and Past President and current State Delegate to the ABA House of Delegates Mark H. Alcott. In addition, attendees will have the opportunity to hear from and interact with the Sponsoring Section Chairs: John H. Wilkinson, Dispute Resolution Section and Glenn G. Fox, International Section.

This year's Roundtable will also include a small CLE component. Attorney Alexandra Dosman, Executive Director of the "new" New York International Arbitration Center, graciously agreed to provide a presentation on ethics in alternative dispute resolution techniques with emphasis on international arbitration. Last year the Roundtable was opened to in-state colleagues, and it is anticipated that will be repeated this year. The Non-Resident Subcommittee is very grateful to its sponsors and speakers.

IV. American Bar Association

In August, I attended the ABA's Annual Meeting in San Francisco. The highlight for our delegation was the installation of New Yorker and Association member Jim Silkenat as ABA President. The Association hosted a reception recognizing Jim's installation, which marked the beginning of the first ABA presidency for a New York attorney in more than 25 years. I have been working closely with Jim since he began his term as President-elect and I look forward to continuing that close relationship over the course of Jim's presidential term. I am pleased to report that Jim has already selected numerous New Yorkers for roles in ABA committees. All of this enhances our role within the ABA and we are honored to be so well represented.

With regard to the ABA House agenda, two items in which NYSBA had a particular interest were adopted after having been amended. The first dealt with the application of the attorney-client privilege to conversations between personnel of a law firm with the firm's in-house counsel, and the second with the exchange of information between state lawyer regulatory bodies and their foreign counterparts. We look forward to working with the ABA in the coming year.

V. Noteworthy Events

A. Local Bar Association Events

Immediate Past President Seymour W. James, Jr., President-Elect Glenn Lau-Kee, and I were pleased to participate in many local bar association events throughout the fall season. Glenn and I hosted the third in a series of meetings with minority bar association leaders in New York City on September 17. On October 10-12, Seymour, Glenn, and I attended a meeting of the Mid-Atlantic Bar Conference in Wilmington, Delaware. Later in October, I spoke at the Onondaga County Bar Association's Annual Dinner in Syracuse. We extend our thanks to these bar associations for including us in their events.

B. Meeting With Justice Kahn and Tribal Court Committees

On September 26, Special Counsel Richard Rifkin and I met with Justice Marcy Kahn, Chair of OCA's New York Federal-State-Tribal Courts Forum, to discuss her committee's proposal regarding state recognition of marriages performed by designees of New York's Indian tribes. We have forwarded this proposal to our Family Law Section for consideration.

C. NYSBA Recognizes Role of Youth Courts

On September 23, the Special Committee on Youth Courts, created during the tenure of former Association President Stephen Younger, along with the U.S. Attorney's Office and the Association of New York State Youth Courts, co-hosted a daylong event that educated and celebrated Youth Court staff, youths, and supporters. The event, which took place at the Bar Center and the U.S. District Courthouse in Albany, was introduced by U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of New York, Richard Hartunian, and hosted by former New York State Chief Judge Judith Kaye and former Appellate Division Justice Bernard Malone, Jr., co-chairs of the Special Committee on Youth Courts. The event showcased a special Youth Court promotional video and a demonstration of a Youth Court hearing, and concluded with a presentation of awards for outstanding youth, staff, and supporting agencies. More than 150 attendees took part in the events over the course of the day. The Special Committee on Youth Courts continues to advance the Youth Court movement throughout the state with promotion, education, and support of existing and developing Youth Courts.

D. Meeting with Chief Administrative Judge Gail Prudenti regarding Family Court

On September 26, 2013, I met with Judge Prudenti regarding the work of the New York State Bar Association's Task Force on the Family Court. I was accompanied at the meeting by the co-chairs of the Task Force, Family Court Judge Rita Connerton and Susan Lindenauer, and staff members Richard Rifkin and Kevin Kerwin. The Task Force report, which contains 26 recommendations, was adopted by the State Bar during its Annual Meeting in January 2013. Since then the Task Force has concentrated its efforts on developing an initial implementation plan focused on five of the recommendations that were viewed as having the highest priority. During the meeting, we pointed out the need for more Family Court judges and funding for the judicial and related non-judicial positions.

E. Annual Meeting in January

Our next House of Delegates and Executive Committee meetings will be held on January 31 and February 1 as part of the Annual Meeting at the New York Hilton Midtown. A variety of other events are planned for the week, including the Presidential Summit and Reception on January 29 and a House of Delegates dinner on January 31. I hope you will join us.
