As of June 2016, Maura R. Grossman is a Research Professor in the David R. Cheriton School of Computer Science at the University of Waterloo, in Ontario, Canada, as well as an eDiscovery attorney and consultant in New York City. Previously, Maura was Of Counsel at Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz, in New York, where for 16½ years, she represented Fortune 100 companies and major financial services institutions in corporate and securities litigation, including civil actions and white collar criminal and regulatory investigations, and advised lawyers and clients on legal, technical, and strategic issues involving eDiscovery and information governance, both domestically and abroad.

Maura is a well-known and influential eDiscovery lawyer. She is described in Who's Who 2015 E-Discovery Analysis as "'sensational' according to her peers and . . . a 'go-to' in the area." Chambers & Partners USA 2015 Litigation: E-Discovery describes her as "the best-known person in the area of technology-assisted review; a superstar among superstars." Maura's scholarly work on TAR, most notably, Technology-Assisted Review in E-Discovery Can Be More Effective and More Efficient Than Exhaustive Manual Review, published in the Richmond Journal of Law and Technology in 2011, has been widely cited in case law, both in the U.S. and abroad. Her longstanding contributions to eDiscovery technology and process, including her multiple patents relating to TAR, were featured in the February 2016 issue of The American Lawyer.

Since 2010, Maura has served as co-chair of the eDiscovery Working Group advising the New York State Unified Court System. She has served as a court-appointed special master, neutral/mediator, and eDiscovery expert to the court in multiple high-profile federal cases. She has provided eDiscovery training to federal and state court judges, by invitation of the court, and has testified, on several occasions, before the Advisory Committee on the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and the Advisory Committee on Evidence Rules, at their invitation. Maura is an adjunct professor at Columbia Law School and the Georgetown University Law Center, where she teaches courses on eDiscovery. She previously taught at Rutgers Law School–Newark and Pace Law School.

Since 2012, Maura has been a member of the Steering Committee of The Sedona Conference® Working Group 1 on Best Practices for Electronic Document Retention and Production. Since 2008, she has been involved in the National Institute of Standards and Technology's Text Retrieval Conference ("TREC"); in 2010 and 2011, as a coordinator of the Legal Track, and since 2015, as a coordinator of the Total Recall Track. Maura serves on the Advisory Boards of Bloomberg BNA's Digital Discovery & e-Evidence Report, the Georgetown University Law Center's Advanced eDiscovery Institute, and the Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law's Cardozo Data Law Initiative.

Maura graduated with an A.B., magna cum laude, from Brown University. She earned M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in Clinical/School Psychology from the Gordon F. Derner Institute of Advanced Psychological Studies at Adelphi University, and a J.D., magna cum laude, Order of the Coif, from the Georgetown University Law Center. While at Georgetown, Maura served as Executive Notes and Comments Editor of the Georgetown Law Journal.
