NEW YORK
Contract Law:
A Guide for Non–New York Attorneys

Glen Banks, Esq.

NORTON ROSE FULBRIGHT

NEW YORK STATE BAR ASSOCIATION
New York State Bar Association Continuing Legal Education publications are intended to provide current and accurate information to help attorneys maintain their professional competence. Publications are distributed with the understanding that NYSBA does not render any legal, accounting or other professional service. Attorneys using publications or orally conveyed information in dealing with a specific client’s or their own legal matters should also research original sources of authority.

We consider the publication of any NYSBA practice book as the beginning of a dialogue with our readers. Periodic updates to this book will give us the opportunity to incorporate your suggestions regarding additions or corrections. Please send your comments to: CLE Publications Director, New York State Bar Association, One Elk Street, Albany, NY 12207.
CONTENTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Chapter</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Chapter I</td>
<td>New York Contract Law</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter II</td>
<td>A Contract Governed By New York Law</td>
<td>17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter III</td>
<td>Contract Formation</td>
<td>57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter IV</td>
<td>Reasons Why A Court May Refuse to Enforce a Contract</td>
<td>103</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter V</td>
<td>Giving Meaning to Contract Language</td>
<td>149</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter VI</td>
<td>Conditions and Implied Terms</td>
<td>189</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter VII</td>
<td>Repudiation</td>
<td>229</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter VIII</td>
<td>Termination</td>
<td>245</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter IX</td>
<td>Assignment</td>
<td>267</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter X</td>
<td>Performance And Breach</td>
<td>277</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter XI</td>
<td>Excuse</td>
<td>321</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter XII</td>
<td>Damages</td>
<td>345</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter XIII</td>
<td>Particular Agreements and Clauses</td>
<td>407</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapter XIV</td>
<td>Counsel’s Work on a Transaction Governed by New York Law</td>
<td>473</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
DETAILED TABLE OF CONTENTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Acknowledgments</th>
<th>xxi</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Foreword</td>
<td>xxiii</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>About the Author</td>
<td>xxv</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Introduction</td>
<td>xxvii</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Chapter I  New York Contract Law

[I.0] A. Why Is New York Contract Law Important to Practitioners Outside New York? 3

[I.2] C. What Is the Basic Principle of New York Contract Law? 9

[I.3] D. Why Choose New York Contract Law to Govern a Contract? 14

Chapter II  A Contract Governed by New York Law

[II.0] A. What Is a “Contract”? 19

[II.1] 1. Can an Oral Agreement Be Enforced? 20

[II.2] 2. Can a Contract Exist if There Is No Oral or Written Agreement Between the Parties? 21

[II.3] 3. Can a Written Agreement Be Binding Upon a Party Named in the Agreement if That Party Did Not Execute the Agreement? 23

[II.4] 4. Can a Preliminary Agreement Have Binding Effect? 23

[II.5] 5. Can a Written Contract Be Found in More Than One Document? 26

[II.6] 6. Do the Prior Oral Agreements and Understandings of the Parties Still Have Effect After Execution of the Written Agreement? 29

[II.7] 7. Can a Contract Change Over Time? 30

[II.8] B. Who Can Enforce, or Be Liable Under, a Contract? 32

[II.9] 1. When May a Third Party Enforce the Contract? 32

[II.10] 2. Can a Third Party Be Held Liable for Breach of the Contract? 35

[II.11] 3. Can an Entity Be Held Liable Under a Contract of an Affiliate? 36

[II.12] 4. Can a Signatory of a Contract Make the Agreement Binding Upon a Third Party? 37

[II.16] 2. Is a Choice-of-Law Clause Necessary to Have New York Law Govern a Contract or a Claim to Enforce a Contract?............................................. 41

[II.17] 3. What Does It Mean to Characterize a Choice-of-Law Clause as Narrow or Broad? ....... 43

[II.20] D. Can Foreign Parties Choose to Have Disputes Concerning Their Contract Adjudicated by a New York Court? .......................................................... 47

[II.22] 2. Will a Court Enforce a Choice-of-Forum Clause? ................................................ 48

[II.23] 3. Can the Parties Choose to Have a New York Court Determine Disputes Concerning Their Contract if Neither the Parties Nor Their Agreement Has any Connection With New York? ................................................ 49

[II.24] 4. If the Parties Want a New York Court to Determine Disputes Concerning Their Contract, Do They Need to Do More Than Select a New York Court in Their Forum-Selection Clause? ....................................... 50
[II.25] 5. Should any Particular Court Be Chosen in a Forum-Selection Clause That Chooses New York as a Forum?................................................. 51

[II.26] 6. Are There Different Types of Forum-Selection
Clauses?.......................................................... 52

[II.27] 7. Can a Non-Signatory to a Contract Force a Signatory to Litigate Claims in the Jurisdiction
Chosen in the Forum-Selection Clause?............ 53

[II.28] 8. Can a Non-Signatory to a Contract Be Bound by a Forum-Selection Clause? ......................... 54

[II.29] 9. Should the Contract Have a Forum-Selection
Clause if Disputes Will Be Arbitrated?.............. 54

Chapter III Contract Formation

[III.0] A. Assent—a Meeting of the Minds ...................... 59
[III.2] 2. How Is Assent Objectively Manifested?............. 60
[III.3] 3. Must the Parties Assent to all the Terms of Their Agreement?........................................... 62
Offer and Acceptance?...................................... 64
[III.5] 5. Is It Possible That There Can Be No Contract if the Parties Executed a Writing That Stated all the Essential Terms of Their Bargain?............. 67

[III.6] B. Definiteness......................................................... 69
[III.8] 2. What Does a Court Do When a Term
Is Indefinite?..................................................... 72
[III.9] 3. Can a Contract Be Formed if a Term Is Left Open?......................................................... 72
Expressing a “Price” Term or the Time for Performance?..................................................... 74

[III.11] C. Consideration .................................................. 75
[III.13] 2. What Can Constitute Consideration? .............. 76
[III.14] 3. Does Any Promise Constitute Consideration
Necessary for an Enforceable Agreement?......... 78
a Court Evaluate the Adequacy of Consideration
Provided by a Party?........................................... 78
[III.18] D. The Statute of Frauds ................................. 81
[III.20] 2. What Is an Agreement That Cannot Be PerformeD Within a Year? .................................... 83
[III.21] 3. What Constitutes a Writing That Satisfies
the Statute of Frauds? ..................................... 84
[III.22] 4. If the Statute of Frauds Applies and Has not Been Satisfied, Can a Court Still Find an Enforceable Agreement? ..................................... 86
[III.23] E. Implied Contracts ....................................... 88
With a Breach of Contract Claim? ......................... 90
[III.29] d. What Is a Claim for Promissory Estoppel? .... 95
Indemnification? ........................................... 98
[III.32] g. What Is a Claim for Money Had and Received? .................................................. 99
[III.33] h. What Law Will Be Applied to Determine a Quasi-Contract Claim? .................................. 100

Chapter IV  Reasons Why a Court May Refuse to Enforce a Contract
[IV.0] A. Fraud ......................................................... 105
[IV.1] 1. What if a Signature on an Agreement
Is Forged? ................................................. 105
[IV.4] a. Reliance ............................................... 110
[IV.5] b. Disclaimers ........................................... 112
[IV.6] c. Scienter ............................................... 113
[IV.7] d. Damages ............................................. 113
[IV.8] 4. Can a Failure to Disclose Constitute Fraud? .... 113
[IV.9] B. Mistake ....................................................... 115
3. Can a Unilateral Mistake Be the Basis for Not Enforcing a Contract? .................. 118
4. Can the Mistake Be a Mistake of Law? .......... 119
5. Can a Mistake Involve Performance? ............ 120
C. Duress................................................................. 120
1. What Is Economic Duress? ...................... 120
2. What Is a Threat That Can Be the Basis for a Finding of Economic Duress? ............. 123
D. Unconscionability.............................................. 125
E. Addressing a Voidable Contract .................. 128
1. What Is Ratification? .................................. 129
2. What Is Rescission? .................................. 129
3. How Is a Claim for Rescission Asserted? ......... 132
5. What Is Declaratory Relief? ....................... 135
F. Illegality .......................................................... 135
2. What Law Is Applied to Determine Illegality? .... 138
3. How Will a Court Analyze the Effects of Illegality? ................................ 140
G. Public Policy ..................................................... 142
1. What Public Policy Issues Have Been Raised in Connection With Enforcement of a Contract? .................................. 143
2. How Does Public Policy Impact Commercial Transactions? ...................... 144
 a. Exculpatory Clauses................................. 144
 b. Clauses Restricting Compensation........... 145
 (i) Business Contracts............................... 145
 (ii) Employees ............................................. 146
 (iii) Contracts for the Sale of a Business .... 146
3. Can a Court Enforce a Contract That Contains a Provision That Is Contrary to Public Policy? .... 148
Chapter V   Giving Meaning to Contract Language

[V.0]  A. Clear, Unambiguous Language ......................... 151
[V.3]  3. In Giving Meaning to Contract Language, Should a Court Consider the Purpose of the Agreement? ................................................................. 154
[V.6]  B. Inconsistent Language ............................................. 160
[V.8]  a. Give Meaning...................................................... 161
[V.9]  b. Harmonize ...................................................... 161
[V.10]  2. What Does the Court Do if the Inconsistent Clauses Cannot Be Harmonized? ...................... 162
[V.12]  4. What Happens if the Inconsistent Clauses Cannot Be Harmonized and Neither the Contract nor the Rules of Construction Shed Light on How to Address the Inconsistency? .................................................. 163
[V.13]  C. Ambiguity............................................................. 164
[V.17]  a. Prior Communications Between the Parties Concerning the Contract..................................... 170
[V.19]  c. Prior Course of Dealing.......................................... 173
[V.20]  d. Custom and Usage............................................. 174
[V.21]  e. Expert Testimony ............................................. 176
[V.22]  f. Subjective Intent.................................................. 177
[V.25] a. Construction Consistent with the Agreement as a Whole ...................................................... 179
[V.26] b. Construction to Achieve a Reasonable Meaning .................................................. 179
[V.27] c. Construction Against Forfeiture .......................................................... 180
[V.28] d. Construction in Favor of the Lesser Obligation ....................................................... 180
[V.29] e. Construction in Favor of Contract Enforceability .................................................... 181
[V.30] f. Construction in the Public Interest .................................................. 181
[V.31] g. Construction Against the Draftsman .................................................. 182
[V.32] h. Construction in Favor of Promisee .................................................. 183
[V.34] a. Construction to Further the Purpose of the Contract .................................................... 183
[V.35] b. Construction to Avoid Inconsistency .................................................. 184
[V.36] c. Construction to Avoid Surplusage .................................................. 184
[V.37] d. Construction to Aid the Realization of the Parties’ Reasonable Expectations .............. 185
[V.39] a. Consistency of Usage .................................................. 185
[V.40] b. Expressio Unius .................................................. 186
[V.41] c. Ejusdem Generis .................................................. 187
[V.42] d. Noscitur a Sociis .................................................. 187
[V.43] e. The Rule of the Last Antecedent .................................................. 188
[V.44] f. Conditions Are Disfavored .................................................. 188

Chapter VI Conditions and Implied Terms

[V.I.0] A. Conditions .................................................. 191
[V.I.2] 2. What Are the Various Types of Conditions That Can Be in a Contract? .............. 193
[V.I.3] 3. How Is an Express Condition Created? .................................................. 195
[V.I.5] 5. Can a Court Excuse Compliance With a Condition? .................................................. 196
7. What Obligation Does a Party Have With Respect to the Fulfillment of a Condition? ........... 198

B. The Implied Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing ........................................................................ 200

1. What Has the New York Court of Appeals Said Concerning the Implied Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing? ................................................................. 201

2. What Obligations Are Created by the Implied Covenant? ................................................................. 205

3. When a Contract Gives a Party the Right to Take (or Refrain From Taking) Action, Can a Claim for Breach of the Covenant Be Based on the Allegation That the Party Acted in Bad Faith? ................................................................. 207

5. In What Circumstances Is the Implied Covenant Inapplicable? ................................................................. 214

C. Other Implied Terms ................................................................................................................................. 217

1. Can a Court Construing a Contract Imply a Term the Parties Did Not Express? ................................. 217

2. May a Court Imply the Time for Performance? ................................................................. 219

3. May a Court Imply the Duration of an Agreement? ................................................................. 223

5. Is Existing Law Implied in a Contract? ................................................................. 226

Chapter VII Repudiation

A. Repudiation ................................................................................................................................. 231

1. What Is a Repudiation? ........................................................................................................ 231

2. What Type of Contract Can Be Repudiated? ................................................................. 232

3. What Constitutes a Repudiation? ................................................................................................. 234

4. If the Contract Has Been Repudiated, What Must the Non-Repudiating Party Do? ................................. 236

5. Can a Repudiation Be Retracted? ................................................................. 238

B. Damages for Repudiation ........................................................................................................ 241
[VII.9] 2. Must the Non-Repudiating Party Show It Could Have Performed the Contract Had It Not Been Repudiated? ........................................................... 242

Chapter VIII Termination
[VIII.0] A. Unilateral Termination ................................................ 247
[VIII.10] B. Mutual Termination................................................. 259
[VIII.12] 2. What Is a Mutually Agreed Rescission? .............. 261
[VIII.14] C. Expiration ............................................................ 263

Chapter IX Assignment
[IX.0] A. Assignment ............................................................ 269
[IX.2] 2. Are Contract Rights Assignable? ........................ 270
[IX.4] 4. Does an Assignment Also Include a Delegation of Duties? ................................................ 273

[IX.6] B. Particular Types of Assignments................................ 274

[IX.8] 2. What Is a Security Assignment? ........................... 275

Chapter X Performance and Breach

[X.0] A. Performance................................................................. 279
[X.1] 1. When Must Performance Take Place? .............. 279
[X.4] 4. If the Contract Does Not Specify a Time for Performance, Does Action Need to Be Taken Before a Claim Is Asserted for Failure to Perform? ................................................................. 283
[X.7] B. Breach.......................................................................... 285
[X.12] 5. What Are the Consequences of a Material Breach? ........................................................................ 289
[X.13] a. Substantial Performance........................................ 290
[X.14] b. Partial Performance ................................................. 292
[X.18] a. Satisfaction Clause ................................................ 298
[X.19] b. Third-Party Approval ............................................. 299 xiv

C. A Claim for Breach of Contract .................................. 300

1. Who Can Assert, or Be Liable on, a Claim for Breach of Contract? ........................................ 300

2. What Must a Claim for Breach of Contract Allege? .................................................................. 301

a. A Valid Contract .................................................. 302

b. The Non-Breaching Party Performed Its Obligations Under the Contract .............................. 304

c. Breach ..................................................................... 305

d. Damages .................................................................. 305

5. Can a Claim for Breach Be Waived? .................................. 310

6. Can the Court Order the Breaching Party to Perform a Contract? ........................................ 310

D. Warranties ................................................................... 312

1. What Is a Warranty?.................................................. 312

2. What Is a Warranty of Fact? ........................................ 313

3. What Are the Warranties Concerning a Product? .......................................................... 315

a. Express Warranties .................................................. 315

b. Warranty of Future Performance .......................... 316

c. Warranty of Title ...................................................... 317

d. Implied Warranty of Merchantability .................. 317

e. Implied Warranty of Fitness for a Particular Purpose .................................................. 318

4. Can Warranties Be Disclaimed? ................................. 319

Chapter XI Excuse

A. Excuse Resulting From an Event Beyond the Parties’ Control ........................................ 323

1. What Is the Defense of Impossibility? ................. 323

2. What Type of Events Have Excused Performance Because of Impossibility? ....................... 327

3. Can Impossibility Result from a Change in Economic Conditions? ..................................... 329

5. What Is the Defense of Frustration of Purpose? ... 333

B. Excuse Resulting From the Other Party’s Conduct .... 335
[XI.7] 1. Does One Party’s Breach Excuse the Other Party’s Performance? ............................................ 335

[XI.8] 2. Does a Failure of Consideration Excuse Performance? ......................................................... 336

[XI.10] C. Contract Language That Relieves a Party of Its Obligation to Perform .................................................. 340

[XI.12] 2. What Clauses Address Changes During the Passage of Time Between the Time of Contracting and the Time of Performance? ........ 343

Chapter XII

Damages

[XII.0] A. Introduction .................................................................................................................. 347

[XII.1] B. The Two Facets of a Claim for Damage ................................................................. 350

[XII.3] 2. What Is the Amount of Damage? ................................................................. 351

[XII.4] C. Causation ................................................................................................................. 352

[XII.6] 2. Is It Possible That a Loss Traceable to the Breach Cannot Be Recovered as Damages? ........ 354

[XII.7] D. Types of Damage ........................................................................................................ 355

[XII.9] 2. What Are Special Damages?.......................................................................................... 357

[XII.10] 3. What Are Incidental Damages? ................................................................................ 358

[XII.13] E. The Measure of Damages .......................................................................................... 360

[XII.14] 1. What Are Expectancy Damages? .............................................................................. 361

[XII.15] 2. What Are Reliance Damages? .................................................................................. 364

[XII.16] 3. What Are Restitution Damages? .............................................................................. 366

[XII.18] F. The Amount of Damages ........................................................................................ 368

[XII.20] 2. How Is the Amount of a Damage Award Determined When the Damage Results From a Failure to Make a Payment in a Foreign Currency? ..................................................... 370

[XII.21] G. Mitigation .................................................................................................................. 372

xvi
[XII.23] 2. When Must the Non-Breaching Party Take Action to Minimize Its Damages?......................... 375
[XII.24] 3. How Is the Mitigation Issue Presented in the Adjudication of a Breach of Contract Claim?...... 376
[XII.25] H. The Terms of the Contract ................................. 377
[XII.27] a. Will a Court Enforce a Liquidated Damage
Clause? ............................................................. 379
[XII.28] b. When Is the Clause an Unenforceable
Penalty? ........................................................ 380
[XII.29] 2. Can the Parties Limit the Damages for a Breach of Their Contract? .......................................... 384
[XII.30] 3. Can a Contract Prescribe and/or Limit the Remedies for Breach? ........................................ 391
[XII.31] a. Prescribed Remedies ....................................... 391
[XII.32] b. Exclusive Remedy ......................................... 393
[XII.33] I. Interest .................................................................. 394
[XII.34] 1. Will Interest Be Added to an Award of Breach of Contract Damages? ..................................... 394
[XII.35] 2. Can the Contract Set the Interest Rate After Breach? .............................................................. 396
[XII.36] 3. Can Interest Be Awarded on Damages Resulting From a Failure to Make an Interest Payment
When Due? ......................................................... 398
[XII.37] J. Lost Profits ........................................................ 398
[XII.38] 1. What Are the Elements of a Lost-Profits
Claim? .............................................................. 399
[XII.39] 2. What Has the New York Court of Appeals
Said Concerning Lost-Profit Damages? ............... 401
[XII.40] 3. What Are “Lost-Asset” Damages? ....................... 403

Chapter XIII  Particular Agreements and Clauses
[XIII.0] A. Guaranty ......................................................... 409
[XIII.2] 2. How Is a Guaranty Affected by Subsequent Events? .......................................................... 411
[XIII.3] a. Modification of Primary Obligation ............... 411
[XIII.4] b. Changes in the Primary Obligor ....................... 412
[XIII.5] c. Revocation ..................................................... 413
Incurred After Its Execution? ............................. 414
4. What Does It Mean if a Guaranty Is Absolute and Unconditional? ................................. 415

5. In an Action to Enforce a Guaranty, May the Guarantor Assert Defenses Available to the Primary Obligor? .......................................................... 417

B. Agreement to Arbitrate .................................................. 419

1. What Is an Agreement to Arbitrate? ..................... 419

2. What Is the FAA? .................................................. 421

3. How Does a Court Decide Whether the Parties Agreed to Arbitrate? .............................................. 424

5. What Does an Arbitration Clause Contain? ........... 426

6. Can a Person Be Required to Arbitrate Even Though He Is Not a Party to Any Agreement to Arbitrate? ........................................................................ 426

C. Indemnification ....................................................... 428

1. What Is an Agreement to Indemnify? ................... 428

2. How Is an Agreement to Indemnify Construed?... 430

3. Are Attorney Fees an Indemnifiable Loss?.......... 432

D. Agreements Concerning Claims .................................. 433

1. What Is a Settlement Agreement? ......................... 434

2. What Is a Release? ................................................ 439

3. What Is a Covenant Not to Sue? ........................... 442

E. Option Contracts ............................................................... 442

1. What Is an Option? ................................................ 442

2. How Does the Option Ripen Into a Valid Bilateral Contract? ................................................. 443

F. Right of First Refusal .................................................. 446

1. What Is a Right of First Refusal? .......................... 446

2. What Triggers a Right of First Refusal? .......... 448

3. Does the Grantor Have an Obligation to Act in Good Faith? ................................................. 449

G. Output and Requirements Contracts ......................... 449

1. What Is the Quantity the Buyer Must Buy and the Seller Must Sell? ........................................... 450

2. Can a Buyer Be Liable for Breach if Its Requirements Decrease? ........................................... 451

3. What if the Seller’s Output Varies? .......................... 452

H. Contract Clauses ................................................................. 453
| XIII.37 | 1. What Effect Is Given to Headings and Recitals? | 453 |
| XIII.38 | 2. Can an Agreement Specify When It Will Become Effective? | 454 |
| XIII.40 | 4. What Is a “Merger” Clause? | 458 |
| XIII.41 | 5. Negating Clauses | 460 |
| XIII.42 | a. What Is a “No Reliance” Clause? | 460 |
| XIII.43 | b. What Is a “Relationship Negating” Clause? | 462 |
| XIII.44 | c. What Is a “No-Waiver” Clause? | 462 |
| XIII.45 | d. What Is a “No-Oral Modification” Clause? | 463 |
| XIII.46 | e. What Is a “No-Assignment” Clause? | 464 |
| XIII.47 | f. What Is a “No-Third-Party-Beneficiary” Clause? | 465 |
| XIII.48 | g. What Is a “No-Construction-Against-the-Draftsman” Clause? | 466 |
| XIII.50 | 7. What Is a “Satisfaction” Clause? | 469 |
| XIII.52 | 9. What Other Clauses Are Often Found in Commercial Contracts? | 471 |

Chapter XIV  Counsel’s Work on a Transaction Governed by New York Law

| XIV.0 | A. What Is This Chapter About? | 475 |
| XIV.2 | C. What Issues Should Counsel Consider in Connection With the Client Executing a Document Outlining the Terms of a Contemplated Transaction? | 479 |
| XIV.3 | D. What Should Counsel Consider in Negotiating a Contract? | 480 |
| XIV.4 | 1. What Should Counsel Consider in Addressing the Unknown? | 481 |
| XIV.5 | a. Caveat Emptor | 481 |
| XIV.6 | b. Due Diligence | 482 |
| XIV.7 | c. Representations and Warranties | 483 |
| XIV.8 | d. The Client Decides How Much Risk It Will Assume | 485 |
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This book has its roots in a conversation I had with Michael Galligan, a former Chair of the International Section of the New York State Bar Association who is currently a member-at-large of the Association’s Executive Committee, in which we noted that although contracts involving parties outside the United States often contain a New York choice-of-law clause, a foreign practitioner had no resource to quickly and easily get a basic understanding of New York Contract Law. Michael undertook to remedy that situation. I am grateful that he approached me to create this work, which presents New York Contract Law to practitioners outside the United States.

I am honored that Judith Kaye, the former Chief Judge of the New York Court of Appeals (the state’s highest court), is writing the foreword to this book. While doing the research for this book, my appreciation grew for the judges in New York who have refined New York Contract Law while applying it to sophisticated commercial agreements.

I am grateful that my firm, Norton Rose Fulbright, let me pursue the opportunity to write this book. I appreciate my colleagues who encouraged me in the months it took to create this text. The book reflects insights gathered from working with my colleagues in my nearly 35 years of the practice of law.

I thank my assistant, Patricia Cassarino, and the staff at Norton Rose Fulbright who helped prepare this text. I give a special thank you to our Summer Associates, Amy Herrera and Leslie Hung, who helped finalize the text, and to Jay Smith, who meticulously cite-checked the text.

Finally, I am grateful to my wife and children for their support and patience while I worked on this book.

—G.B.
FOREWORD

When Glen Banks phoned me with the news that his manuscript was complete, he described the subject of New York contract law as “a thing of beauty.” He knew that he would find no more enthusiastic affirmance—and he was entirely right, both as to his subject and as to his manuscript.

This foreword can only begin with a note of deep appreciation to the author on behalf of lawyers and students of law (New York, non-New York and worldwide), judges and people simply interested in having a clear, articulate answer to a question of New York contract law, whether English is their first, or a subsidiary, language.

At the outset, the author tells us that this book is intended as a reference tool particularly to assist non-New York practitioners advising clients regarding commercial transactions governed by New York law, and I can surely appreciate that the book has been conceived and formatted to achieve that objective. In brief sections, the book posits specific issues, starting with the glimmer of an agreement between parties all the way through to the consequences of the contract’s demise.

Each section addresses a particular question: Can a preliminary agreement have binding effect? Can a nonsignatory to a contract force a signatory to litigate claims in the jurisdiction specified in the forum-selection clause? What is an illusory agreement? How does public policy impact enforcement of commercial contracts? What is abandonment? Can the court order the breaching party to perform a contract? Can a loss traceable to the breach not be recovered as damages? What about arbitration? An agreement to indemnify? An option?

There are literally hundreds of questions, each in turn thoughtfully and articulately answered, supported by easily accessible references to New York law. What a resource for parties and counsel, however learned (or unlearned) in the law—even for judges—to be able to plunge right into a most nightmarish question at the heart of a dispute they are facing and learn the precise answer without plodding through a lot of preliminary turf. If there is any remaining shred of doubt after consulting the text, the reader can turn to Appendix A and Appendix B (actual clauses drawn from publicly filed agreements that show exactly how major companies in their contracts have addressed issues like waiver, liquidated damages, force majeure and countless other potential problems).
All told, a genuine gift to those in search of the ready, reliable New York contract law answer, whether they are located in, or beyond, our state’s borders.

All of which brings to mind that I should really have begun with a note of personal disclosure. While the author intends this to be a handy reference tool for non-New York practitioners to answer particular questions—in other words for a “quick dip”—as a judge of New York State’s high court, the Court of Appeals, for more than 25 years (15 of those years as Chief Judge), I could not resist—and thoroughly enjoyed—leafing through the entire volume, beginning to end. It’s surely not a beach read, but it is a highly satisfactory insight into all of the rules and principles, how they have been carefully developed over the past two centuries, and why they are an excellent choice for dispute resolution today.

Most happily, I am reminded of dilemmas we faced at the Court’s conference table—differing views on the application of an established principle, where clarification and harmonization were the objectives; statutory interpretation seeking sound implementation of legislative objectives; novel issues in our evolving global world where definitive law-making is a significant part of the role of our courts. A genuine trip down memory lane. It is the ultimate gratification to see the New York courts’ commitment to clarity, certainty, predictability and stability—paramount in commercial dealings—across the spectrum of contract law.

Were I Mr. Banks’s intended ideal reader (the non-New York lawyer looking for a “quick dip”), after ascertaining the specific answer I was seeking, I’d linger especially on the concluding chapter (advice to counsel) for special tips, and then return to the start of the book to be certain that I had done everything I needed to do to assure the choice of New York law and—yes—the forum too! A great choice: New York, and the book.

Judith S. Kaye,
Former Chief Judge of the State of New York
ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Glen Banks, a partner in the New York office of Norton Rose Fulbright, has practiced law in New York since 1980. His practice is focused upon matters concerning transaction documents, including handling disputes relating to commercial agreements and advising clients of their rights and obligations under an agreement.

Mr. Banks has given evidence as an expert witness on New York Contract Law in proceedings before tribunals outside the United States. He also has served as a consulting expert assisting counsel in addressing a dispute concerning a contract between foreign parties governed by New York law.

In addition to this book, Mr. Banks is the author of New York Contract Law, a text described in Appendix A to this book. He also writes a column on Contract Law that appears in the New York Law Journal and has written articles on Contract Law for journals.

Any comments you might have on this book would be welcome. Please email your comments to glen.banks@nortonrosefulbright.com.