After twenty-five years in private practice as a commercial litigator advising large corporations, closely held business, and individuals, including all aspects of dispute resolution, trials, and appeals at both the state and federal levels, Rob joined Power-Flo Technologies, Inc. in April 2018 as its General Counsel.

The Power-Flo family is comprised of fourteen companies serving the New York Metropolitan area and New England. In addition to being a master distributor across the electrical and plumbing industries, the family of companies also manufactures and repairs pumps and customizes controls and switchgear.

Rob is a member of the Bar Association's Committee on Continuing Legal Education, is the Statewide Chair of the Bar Association's biennial lecture on Judgment Enforcement, and frequently lectures on that topic for the "Bridging the Gap" series for newly admitted attorneys. Rob is also a frequent lecturer on the topic of Piercing the Corporate Veil and has done so for nationally recognized CLE providers. Rob is a member of the Board of Directors for the Huntington Chamber of Commerce on Long Island, and also acts as that Board's counsel.
