INTRODUCTION

This is a report on lawyer discipline in New York State for the year 2006. Each section of the report is divided into three parts. Each part is intended to explain a different aspect of the disciplinary system.

Although each part of our report is complete and self-contained, by way of introduction we offer a summary of the report's various parts and a brief overview of the report as a whole so that the reader can better understand how these parts relate to each other.

In general, our report is intended to serve a dual purpose. It is, in one sense, a compilation of data, reflecting the immediate past in relation to the last ten years. It is also an expression of our hope for progress in the future development of professional discipline as a constructive means for regulating the practice of law.

PART I

The first part contains a statistical compilation of all disciplinary matters processed in New York State during 2006 and includes three tables. The last two of these tables compare disciplinary activity over the preceding ten years.

To those unfamiliar with the nomenclature of professional discipline in New York State, some of the terms used in the tables may be confusing. The practice has been initially to consider each intended complaint of misconduct or supposed cause for investigation as an "inquiry." When it appears that the "inquiry" does not allege conduct, which, even if true, would constitute professional misconduct, it is rejected for "failure to state a complaint." Otherwise, where a cognizable complaint has been alleged, the file is assigned for investigation.

All inquiries in the form of a written complaint that come to the attention of a disciplinary committee, whether or not subsequently dismissed for "failure to state a complaint," are deemed "matters" for reporting purposes. Simple requests for information about an attorney's conduct or telephonic accusations are not reported as "matters." Often several "matters" will involve the same attorney; and all matters involving that attorney which are considered simultaneously will be deemed one "case."

The disciplinary procedures employed vary in some respects among the four Departments. Understandably, some of the terminology used to describe those differing procedures will also vary. Often the same procedures will be described differently by the various Departments of the Appellate Division and even functionally equivalent agencies of discipline will be known by different names. In the First Department, we refer to the "Departmental Disciplinary Committee" as the principal agency of professional discipline; in the Third Department, its functional equivalent is known as the "Committee on Professional Standards"; in the Second and Fourth Departments, there are three district "Grievance Committees" which serve as the principal agencies of discipline in each of those two Departments.

The multiplicity of disciplinary committees operating throughout the State results in each committee receiving a substantial number of inquiries and complaints that fall within the jurisdiction of other committees and which must then be referred out. Sometimes this is a consequence of the complainant having chosen the wrong forum; other times it is as a consequence of judicial policy requiring official staff review of all complaints relating to attorney conduct. For example, in the Second and Fourth Departments, all complaints received by county bar association grievance committees (with the sole exception of those received by one association in the Fourth Department) are routinely referred to the professional staff of one of the district grievance committees. Even if the complaint appears to be nothing more than a fee dispute, by court rule in these Departments, a policy has been established to refer all inquiries to the district grievance committee's professional staff. Upon review, the district grievance committee, in turn, will refer a large portion of these matters to county bar association committees for further processing and investigation. Often a matter that was initially referred to the district committee will be referred back to the same county bar association. Such matters would be reported by the district committee as both "new matters received" and "referred to other disciplinary committees."

The statistics from the Second Department represent the total number of actions taken by the various court-appointed district committees and include the reports of county bar association grievance committees. The reports of the district committees, as well as those of the local bar association committees (including the respective grievance committees of the Brooklyn, Queens, Richmond, Dutchess, Orange, Putnam, Rockland and Westchester Bar Associations), are separately reproduced. In the Tenth Judicial District, the grievance committees of the Nassau and Suffolk County Bar Associations only investigate so-called "minor complaints" and then report them to the district committee which makes the ultimate disposition. Such matters, although for the most part processed by the local bar association committees, are incorporated in the report of the district committee.

In the Third Department, relatively few matters are processed by local bar associations. It is estimated that less than 10% of the total number of matters are handled by such associations. However, no statistics are available that separately reflect such bar association activity.

Finally, in the Fourth Department, a substantial number of so-called "minor complaints" are processed by local bar associations. The local processing of such matters is included, without differentiation, in the statistics furnished by the district committees.

PART II

The second part of this report summarizes all disciplinary decisions published by the four departments of the Appellate Division during 2006. Although these decisions are important in terms of expressing the judiciary's treatment of serious misconduct, it should be remembered that they represent only a small portion of the matters which pass through the disciplinary system each year, and that most cases which involve some form of professional misconduct are not referred to the courts for imposition of discipline.

The lists of cases contained in this part are intended to summarize the disciplinary decisions issued by the four departments of the Appellate Division during the year just ended. There are eight lists, one for each of the official agencies of discipline. Each list is divided into three columns. The first column contains the respondent's name and, where available, the citation; the second column contains a brief statement of the action taken by the court; and the last column summarizes the charges, where relevant to the proceedings.

As with all summaries, the need to condense a large body of information results in a loss of substantial detail. Accordingly, the reader who is interested in obtaining information about a particular case or respondent is cautioned not to rely on the summary presentation contained in these lists. Instead, such reader is urged to refer to the full text of the court's decision.

PART III

The third and last part of this report contains various data on the organization of the State's eight official agencies of discipline. It sets forth the names and titles of the professional disciplinary staff and their respective volunteer committee members in each of the eight official disciplinary agencies of the State. An Appendix sets forth the disciplinary budget appropriations for fiscal 2006 and the salaries of disciplinary staff.

A NOTE OF APPRECIATION

In reviewing these statistics, the reader is urged to consider the number of complaints processed in the course of a year as against the resources and personnel available to do the job. The tables contained in Part I of this report reveal that over 15,000 complaints were processed in each year.

Available to do the job were less than 400 staff members and volunteers. It is to them, in recognition of their unflagging devotion to their duties, that this report is respectfully dedicated.
